

Pietro Quaglino born 1968, dermatologist, is Associate Professor of Dermatology at the Department of Medical Sciences, University of Turin Medical School. He obtained the National Scientific Qualification as Full Professor in 2013.

He is now Director of the Residency Programme in Dermatology at the University of Turin.

His main field of interest for clinical and research activities are cutaneous lymphoma, melanoma, and immune dermatology. His experience in the field of cutaneous lymphoma ranges from the early diagnosis to the treatment of the advanced phase disease.

He is coordinator of the Italian Group for Cutaneous Lymphoma , he is past-chairman of the EORTC Cutaneous Lymphoma Task Force and has been member of the Board Directors of the ISCL (International Society for Cutaneous Lymphoma), board member of the GIPMe (Gruppo Italiano Polidisciplinare sul Melanoma), board member and treasurer since 2017 of the IMI (Italian Melanoma Intergroup).

He has published more than 300 peer-reviewed scientific papers.

He has served as Principal Investigator in many international trials in cutaneous melanoma, non melanoma skin cancer and primary cutaneous lymphoma.

Prof. Quaglino is a Member of the Editorial Board of the Giornale Italiano di Dermatologia e Venereologia, reviewer of international journals on dermatology and referee for ANVUR (National Agency for the Evaluation of Universities and Research Institutes).